Mrs. Darlyng's True Shot

Mrs. Francis Darlyng, of Fort Pierce, Fla., is a native Kansan, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, but her exploits with gun and rod have proved that she is well fitted for frontier life. She is a great fisherwoman, and equally proficient with the gun. Two weeks ago she killed a big panther under most exciting circumstances. Near their house flows a small creek, and near it is fixed the wash-house. Big trees surround and hang over it making it cool and delightful in the hottest day. On this day Mrs. Darlyng's servant girl was doing the week's washing there, and with her was Mrs. Darlyng's youngest daughter, a baby of two years.

The mother was at the house doing some work, when all at once she heard a terrible scream from the colored girl, followed by shrill cries from her baby. Scampering up a Winchester that hung up beside the door, the alarmed mother darted toward the creek. As she reached it she heard a loud cry, or unearthly yell, that she recognized too well as the tones of an enraged panther.

The scene that she beheld as she emerged upon the creek's bank will never be effaced from her memory. Seated under a long, low, branching limb of a water oak was her child looking up into the tree and crying piteously.

The servant girl was lying down near by, her head buried in her apron, almost dead with fright. The mother's quick eye glanced up in the tree, and there encountered the fierce eyes and snarling face of a huge panther that crouched low on its belly on the limb, eyeing the child below, ever and anon licking its chops at the prospective feast before it.

The mother's nerves grew as steel at the peril of her beloved child, and she raised the gun to her shoulder and with steady aim pulled the trigger. A horrible scream followed the shot and a long yellow body shot swiftly downward. The huge beast had leaped the moment she had fired, but the rifle ball had changed its course, so that it alighted several feet from the child. It landed on the ground, rolled over several times, and then rose up and faced the woman, its yellow fangs showing as it snarled and yelled with rage and pain.

Slowly advancing toward the heroic mother, the big cat snarled incessantly and its tail switched from side to side, its rage increasing all the while. Within a dozen feet it gathered itself together and sprang at the woman. She pulled the trigger, but the cartridge failed to explode. Stunned for a moment at this mischance, the brave woman never for an instant lost her wits. Springing forward she grasped the big dipper used for dipping up water, and, standing beside the big kettle that was filled with boiling water, she laded it out freely and dashed it in the face of her ferocious assailant. This weakened the cat and it fell back, rolling over and over in its agony, as the water was scalding hot.

Mrs. Darlyng continued to dash on the hot water, and finally the panther, with a bearded cry of pain and rage, hastily scrambled up a low tree near by. Then the woman's pluck showed itself. Reaching for her rifle, she examined the cartridges carefully, and, taking good aim at the yellow, furry body amid the leaves above her, fired three shots as rapidly as possible. The panther tumbled down in a hurry, and with one long wail died.

Mrs. Darlyng clasped her child to her bosom and ran swiftly to the house, where she fell in a faint on the doorstep. Her husband an hour later, on his return from the postoffice, found her just sitting up, the baby patting his mother's cheek and saying: "Me mamma dood—she 'it big kitty." The panther was skinned, and its pelt now adorns Mrs. Darlyng's cosy sitting room as a reminder of the bravery that saved her child's life.

BITTEN BY A SKUNK.—An Arizona cattle king was the first of three patients received by Dr. Gibier at the Pasteur Institute in New York yesterday. He was bitten by a skunk about two months ago, and is very apprehensive of fatal results. He bases his fears upon the fact that four men in his vicinity, who were bitten by the same species of animal, died afterwards, showing every symptom of hydrophobia. The cattle king, whose name Dr. Gibier refuses to make public, came East especially to enter the Pasteur Institute. Half of his right ear still shows the marks of the animal's teeth. The ear was eaten off while the cattle king lay asleep in front of his door. The wounds in the hand were received while battling with and killing the creature. Dr. Gibier gave the man his first inoculation before dinner.

MEDICINAL

Its peculiar efficacy is due as much to the process and skill in compounding as to the ingredients themselves. It checks diseases in the outset, or if they be advanced will prove a potent cure.

No Home should be Without It.

It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. All who lead sedentary lives will find it the best preventive of and cure for Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Piles and Mental Depression. No loss of time, no interference with business while taking. For children it is most innocent and harmless. No danger from exposure after taking. Cures Colic, Diarrhoea, Bowel Complaints, Feverishness and Nervousness. It is the mildest and most effective of all medicines. A little taken at night insures refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and sweetens the breath.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Dr. J.C. Williams' Pink Pills, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time do it (instead of weakening the digestion) and assimilate the powers of the system."

L. M. HENSON, M.D., Washington, Ark.

Marked of Genuine: Look for the red Trade-Mark on wrapper, and the Seal and Signature of J. C. Williams & Co., Inc., on the side. Taken care of.

FOR WHOSE BENEFIT.

It is indispensable to the modern traveler or sportsman, as it is the necessary of life. We cannot get along without it. Each being the case, we keep a full supply of everything to satisfy all demands, all tastes, all pocketbooks.

This being the season of travel and recreation, we call attention to the following:

A prime requisite is a box of Paper and Envelopes in compact form. We have it in a variety of styles, commercial and extra sizes. In this department we constantly maintain a stock of the best and most exclusive Writing Papers, appropriate for all forms and needs of polite correspondence. The varieties of paper shown embrace the productions of the leading manufacturers of high-grade Writing Papers of domestic and foreign make.

Correspondence Cards, new styles and cheaper than ever.

All the standard makes of Pens, in every size, shape and price, from 5c upwards. Take some of this with you in a traveling instand, of which we have a large variety; or, if you use a Stylographic or Fountain Pen, have it filled with this Ink. If you do not possess one of these Pens, let us sell you one of the latest and best patterns, ranging in price from $1 upwards.

Portfolios and Writing Tablets are always valuable. You can sit down on the beach or wherever you please, quietly and alone, free from observing eyes, and write that letter which needs a long reply.

If you are out of town and cannot examine for yourself our complete stock of Stationery and Fancy Goods, send us your orders and we will send you in return just what you want.
